A CLEVER RUSE.

It was in the days of the black flag, and of the nimble keel coppered to the bends, and of that square of blood red bunting which when run aloft to the maintopmast head signified "No quarter!" A round bowed Bristol trader, a bark of about 400 tons, three months out from the Avon and bound to Savanna la Mar, lay helpless off that Jamaican port in what is known to sailors as a "sheet calm."

The water floated like a breast of liquid glass, and a solemn, long drawn heave or swell ran through it. The Bristol trader, in strict correspondence with her proportions, rolled very uncomfortably indeed from side to side, bringing her wide spaces of canvas into the mast with many savage sounding whacks until the atmosphere all about seemed filled with the noise of exploding artillery.

The heat was intense; the hour about 2 in the afternoon. The dark blue land about Blewfield's bay swam in the steamy haze and writhed as though it lived.

Seaward the junction of heaven and water was scarcely distinguishable in the parched and brassy air. The land went sloping into mere films, and nothing showed upon the face of the ocean save a large cutter rigged vessel, lifting and sinking upon the swell at the distance of about two miles away from the Bristol trader in the direction of Blewfield's bay.

"Mr. Jenkins," said the master of the Bristol ship, "drop the hand lead over the side and observe the vessel's drift."

This was done and the rate of drift reported.

"Sir," said Mr. Rogers, the captain, to his mate, "it is not my intention to founder upon a bottom of coral or go to pieces on St. John's point. Clew up and haul down everything tight and let go the anchor."

These orders were duly executed. The seamen made the decks busy with their fingers in active motion, and the chain cable roared hoarsely as the weight of the big anchor swept it smoking through the hawsers.

Some half dozen male passengers—women there were none—languished upon the little poop in the sultry shadow cast by the awning. It was disheartening to see the narrow entrance to Savanna la Mar almost within reach of a 24 pounder's throw of its ball, and to be as little able to enter it as to it.

"How long is this going to last?" exclaimed a planter.

"Perhaps a week, sir," answered Captain Rogers, a large, short, purple faced man who hated to be asked questions.

The planter rolled the yellow "whites" of his eyes to the heavens and tossed his hands, with a malediction betwixt his teeth.

"What's that yonder, coming round that corner of land?" exclaimed another passenger, pointing to the line of coast which the rolling cutter lay becalmed abreast of.

Captain Rogers went to the companion way, picked up the ship's telescope and leveled it.

"A picaroon!" he exclaimed, and the roar of his voice went in thunder along the decks as he bawled to his liveliess to tumble up and load the carromades, and to see all ready with the small arms, and to stand by to sink the scoundrels should they dare attempt to board the ship. But it was evidently evident that the picaroon's quarry was the cutter, and not the Bristol merchantman.

The picaroon was a long, black schooner, setting very low in the water, heavily rigged, showing not an inch of canvas as she stealthily crawled over the burried blue heave to the impulse of her long oars, or "sweeps," as though she were some gigantic marine reptile forging her way through it with movements of her antennae.

The cutter rolled helpless, with an occasional blazing flash seawards as she lifted her wet, sparkling copper out of the water. On a sudden, however, and as though the men aboard her had but just waked from sleep, down dropped her swinging, big mainsail, oars were thrown over, and she made in the direction of the Bristol trader, slipping her cable as she rounded, without stopping to buoy her anchor.

But the picaroon buzzed fast in her wake. A puff of white cloud occasionally broke from her bow, and the black ball, ill aimed, went skimming ahead of the cutter in the direction of the Bristol merchantman like a parched pea along a table.

Before the cutter had measured half a mile the picaroon was alongside and lashed the vessels together for boarding as a spider revolts a fly in its web before trotting aloft to dine off it in hole.

There was some small crackling of blunderbusses and pistols, shots faint in the distance and a little lifting of white smoke. The business was then ended, and with true pirate relish the picaroon was maker for the blue heave of coast, with the unhappy cutter crowing and rolling and floundering in her wake.

This treacherous piece of work had been watched with helpless wrath by Captain Rogers and his ship's company and with no small alarm by the passengers. The captain said he could swear to the schooner. She was the wickedest of all the picaroon pests of those waters. He pronounced her name, and his face was as full of blood with temper as he did so.

An hour later an inshore breeze sprang up. The anchor was swiftly casthead to a cheery chorus, and the Bristol trader was steered for the narrow passage to receive a pilot for Savanna la Mar.

By sundown the ship was moored in harbor, and everything was made snug for the night. A considerable number of vessels happened to be assembled in the port, and the picture was one of beauty and color when, on the sinking of the sun and to the blast of a heavy piece of ordnance, some score or two of radiant streaks of bunting descended fluttering to the deck from peak and mizzenhead.

THE HAWAIIAN SITUATION.

Minister Thurston, who represented the Provisional Government of the Hawaiian Islands at Washington, has left the Capital for Honolulu. He has not been recalled, neither has he been given his passports by our Government, but voluntary departs for the islands. Before leaving Washington he told some friends that the Provisional Government has 1,200 men under arms at Honolulu ready at a moment's notice. This force, which is quite an army on the islands, will not be permitted to resist United States marines should they be landed at Honolulu to restore the Queen, neither will they lay down their arms and leave the Government building upon request of Minister Willis. The Provisional Government will remain in power until the members are arrested by United States forces and it will resist interference by any other nation than an armed force of the United States. It will not allow supporters of the Queen to enter the palace or disturbance unless those supporters are clearly United States marines.

There are only a few men and whites in the Hawaiian Islands, the large majority of the inhabitants being natives or Chinese. The army of the Provisional Government is composed of whites, and perhaps represents one-third or more of the able-bodied white men of the islands. The Queen is said to be a dissolute woman, and she was wholly under the influence of white adventurers and place-hunters. The responsible white residents, with very few exceptions, had no confidence in her government, and she was dethroned and the Provisional Government established by common consent. That Government has maintained order and commanded the respect of the people for nearly a year. It is recognized by the United States and it does not seem to be the business of our Government to inquire into the manner in which it was established any more than it is to ascertain how the French and Brazilian Republics were organized. All have been recognized by the United States and it is not the plan of the United States to go back and inquire how Louis Napoleon, Dom Pedro and Queen Liliuokalani were deposed.

SILVER MEN ACTING.

The second annual convention of the Colorado Silver League opened in Denver last Thursday with about 200 delegates in attendance. The convention adopted an address urging that silver be remonetized in order to relieve business distress. It also declared that the United States should have a financial policy of its own, independent of the monarchical powers, and that gold and silver should be recognized as the basis of money. The restoration of the law in relation to coinage as it existed before the adoption of the constitution down to 1873, was demanded as an act of justice to the people.

The convention elected delegates to the Washington Silver Convention, which is to be held next week for the purpose of endeavoring to impress upon Congress the necessity of legislation favorable to silver. It is expected that good will result from this gathering of silver men, as Congressmen have learned that it was not the purchase of silver bullion by the Government nor the fear of getting the country on a silver basis that caused the unprecedented gold shipments to Europe last summer and the great business depression.

A REMINDER OF THE CHILEAN WAR.

The Chilean Government has filed with the Chilean Claims Commission at Washington a claim for $227,000 damages in the well known Itata case. The steamer Itata was seized by the United States Marshal at San Diego during the Chilean rebellion. The officers of the vessel sent the Marshal ashore and steamed away loaded with munitions of war for Valparaiso. It was followed by the Charleston and brought back to San Diego. Judge Ross of the United States District Court decided that it was illegally detained and ordered it released. Now the Chilean Government ask in behalf of the South American Steamship Company, which owned the Itata, the amount stated and the claim will doubtless be allowed and paid. The rebels in whose interest the Itata was loaded at San Diego were victorious and the men on whose heads Balmaceda had set a price are now at the head of the Chilean Government.

ADVICES from Washington indicate that the Federal tax on State banks of issue will not be repealed. Of the seventeen members of the Banking and Currency Committee nine are opposed to repeal and eight do not favor reporting a bill to the House. Among these is Chairman Springer of the Committee. The committee will report favorably a bill to allow National banks to issue circulating notes to the full amount of the bonds deposited with the Comptroller of the Currency to secure circulation.

CHICAGO'S STARVING.

Hundreds of Men Fight Like Wolves for Bread.

A MISER'S LARGE FORTUNE.

An Impression That Cleveland Is Going to Take the Back Track.

HUNDREDS OF FAMISHED MEN, They Fight Like Wolves for Crumbs of Bread.

CHICAGO, December 9.—Hundreds of hungry men engaged in a fierce combat for crumbs of bread was the pitiful picture of poverty and despair witnessed in the corridors of the City Hall last night. At an early hour fully 1,000 of them had sought shelter for the night. The long corridor was so completely filled that it was impossible to walk from one entrance to another without treading on the unfortunate's legs and arms.

By 10 o'clock it was found necessary to open the basement to the wanderers, and 300 were soon crowded just as near to the furnaces as it is possible to get. They were not all tramps, the proportion of "laboring men out of a job" to the professional idlers being almost three to one.

A few men among the number had some small change left, and they decided to pool their pennies and get a bite to eat. Two men were appointed a committee to go for sandwiches, and while they were gone their companions cleared a space for the coming supper and spread clean papers on the floor where they intended to eat.

Meanwhile the hordes of less fortunate overheard this talk and gazed silently on the preparations being made by the capitalists. A majority of the onlookers had not tasted a morsel of food for several days, and hunger had inflamed them to a point of madness.

There was no preconcerted movement beyond the ungovernable demands of appetite, but when the sandwich committee returned with two well-filled boxes, the tiger-like ferocity of the starving bystanders broke forth and a furious rush was made by the hungry horde for the food.

So fierce was the combat that in a moment's time the sandwiches were in crumbs and starving men were struggling for the smallest bit of the feast. Sandwiches were trampled under foot in the fierce engagement, but all the same these morsels were seized and eaten with perfect avidity. No less than 400 men battled for the slices of bread which could not satisfy the cravings of ten.

While this combat was on the police found it utterly impossible to restore order, and the engagement only ended when the last crumb was gone and the hungry warriors were too bruised and weak to continue the struggle. No such scene has ever been witnessed in Chicago before, and it will arouse the citizens to a sense of their responsibility and danger.

A MISER'S WEALTH.

His Relatives Find $10,000 After His Death.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., December 9.—When Joseph Deitch died last Monday morning at his residence, 88 North Alabama street, there were few who suspected him of being a capitalist. Mr. Deitch was 80 years old at the time of his death. He was formerly engaged in the dry goods business, but retired many years ago. He was known to have been thoroughly successful in his commercial transactions and that he had achieved a fair competence, but beyond this no one imagined him to be possessed of wealth.

This notion as to Mr. Deitch's financial importance was dissipated this morning when his will was offered for probate. It provided for bequests aggregating nearly $50,000, and one single item set aside $20,000 for the erection of a tomb in the Hebrew Cemetery. The first idea of the friends and relatives upon being acquainted with the provisions of the will was that Deitch had been insane and that his will was a mere freak. No outside resources were known of and it was decided to search for alleged wealth in the house.

The hunt was commenced in a room in which much of his time in latter years had been passed. Here the search was rewarded. There were no hidden panels nor secret and intricate recesses, but from sundry closets and various nooks and corners the treasure hunters pulled forth great bags of gold coin and fat packages of bank notes and greenbacks. These were sorted and counted and showed an aggregate of $94,000. The money was removed to a safe-deposit vault, where it will await distribution according to the provisions of the will.

ENGLAND feels that it had the best of the Behring Sea controversy. The Official Gazette announces that Sir Charles Russell and Sir Richard Webster have been created Knights of the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, and that Sir Thomas Sanderson has been made Knight Commander of the Bath for their services in settling the Seal Fisheries dispute.

Will Cleveland Back Down.
WASHINGTON, December 9.—The impression among leading Democrats in Congress is gaining ground that Cleveland is going to take the back track in Hawaiian affairs, and the object of dispatching a special messenger on a revenue cutter to Honolulu was to countermand his instructions to Willis, if not too late. It is said the public will probably never learn just what the instructions to Willis were, as those put in writing were very general, and the important particular instructions were verbal. The written instructions are to be interpreted by the verbal explanation of their purpose.

TELEGRAPH NOTES.

Four persons were drowned while crossing the Mississippi river in a skiff.

Mrs. Adolph Sutro died after a long illness of an incurable disease at her home in San Francisco.

At Belton, Wash., a passenger engine, express and baggage car went over an embankment 200 feet high. Several are reported killed.

The Denver News says that if Governor Waite calls an extra session of the Colorado Legislature to forward his silver scheme he will be impeached, as it is a penitentiary offense.

The Civil Service Association, an organization of Treasury clerks in the Government service, have petitioned the President to require the chiefs of departments to take the civil service examination.

An entire Southern Pacific passenger train went over a ton-foot embankment near El Paso, Texas. No one was killed, but a number were badly wounded. At Benson, Arizona, another S. P. passenger train went over an embankment, no one, however, being killed. In each case it is supposed to be the work of tramps incensed at the recent S. P. order refusing to allow them to ride free.

A dynamite bomb was exploded in the French Chamber of Deputies at 4 o'clock. Deputies Myre de Villers, Abbé le Maires and others were seriously wounded. The police at once closed the doors and prevented all egress. It is, however, believed that the bomb thrower escaped. The bomb went off just as it left the anarchist's hand, which accounts for the number injured in the galleries, some of whom were women.

A MILLION FRIENDS.

A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. HARD TIMES.
Caused by the Plutocrats Controlling Financial Legislation.

The conspiracy of the plutocrats to bond the world on a gold basis has been successfully conducted. The bondholder is now in his glory, and the bondsmen are obliged to serve his master more faithfully than did the old fashioned slaveholder was very solicitous about the physical condition of his chattel. He had to furnish medical attendance through sickness, and at death, had to pay all funeral expenses. The bondholder has nothing of the kind to trouble him, his workers take care of the sick, bury the dead, and the patriotic bondholder is relieved of all trouble and expense. Truly the slaveholder made no mistake in changing his calling to that of bondholder, having found the bondholder in a flourishing condition. Now let us see what is the condition of his workers. Some of the workers are allowed to hold what is called title to property, but of course this title is subject to severallines. The national bonds are the first mortgage on his property, the State bonds are the second mortgage, and the county bonds are the third mortgage. If the worker is fortunate enough to live in a city the municipal bonds become the fourth mortgage and if some enterprising bondholder can convince the worker that there ought to be another mortgage on his property he obligingly puts on a fifth mortgage. This last mortgage is what is called a private debt and being considered a great luxury, the worker is expected to pay the highest rate of interest. The worker is now considered well fixed. He is a property holder, a taxpayer and a useful citizen. The bondholder puts the worker on the back and tells him about the great possibilities that are in store for him and that if he will keep voting the Democratic and Republican tickets he will continue to prosper. The worker voted as directed until he found that his interest in the party was practically worthless, and no matter how hard he worked or how much he tried to save, he kept getting more hopelessly involved. He now begins to investigate the cause of his deplorable condition and finds that the bondholders are controlling the financial legislation at Washington and thereby have reduced the masses to poverty and bondage. He joins the People's party, and is immediately threatened with foreclosure if he don't go back to the Democratic or Republican fold. But the worker has got his back up and declares he will become a tramp before he will vote another old party ticket, for he has found to his sorrow that the people have been betrayed and led into bondage by these twin agents of plutocracy.

FARMER.

Roasting Parkinson.

Yesterday's Tribune contained an article charging that Foote's theatrical tour here was a private speculation of Foote's and Sam Davis' and that they were getting 33 1/3 per cent of the receipts.

Foote read the article from the stage last night and proceeded to give the park a severe "roasting." He pronounced every statement of the Tribune a lie, made because of a spiteful feeling against Sam Davis, who, for nearly twenty years, has placed the theatrical profession under obligations to him all over the United States. He was loudly applauded by the audience.

Mr. Davis was asked if he had any statement to make. He said it would not be necessary to reply to the Tribune in Carson, but it might be in Reno. He said Mr. Foote had been sent up by the '90 camp to boom the Fair in the mining State of Nevada and give performances to pay for the 10,000 square feet of space sold the State by the '90 camp for $500, when space was commanding $1.50 and $2 a square foot. He had earned the $500.

The committee had the money and Mr. Foote held the receipt. Nevada needed more space for her agricultural exhibit, and Mr. Foote had donated the top of his theater, 7,500 square feet, to the State. When the State gets 17,500 square feet of space for $500 and Mr. Foote gives the committee the $500 to pay for it there would seem to be no kick coming from anybody. At the rate space is selling now, this is worth over $26,000. Any one who would criticize this act is simply unacquainted with the facts.

If Mr. Foote cleared $10,000 the State would still be under obligations to him; as it is, after paying the salaries of his company, there is nothing left for him, as it will cost him $100 to send them back to San Francisco. After contracting for the Nevada tour, he was obliged to cancel several engagements in California, and had to keep the company in San Francisco for a week entirely at his own expense. I traveled with the company, said Mr. Davis, at the request of Mr. Foote and the '90 mining company, and pay my own expenses, including railroad fares. Mr. Foote realizes the fact that the article does not voice the sentiment of the people of the State, but is simply the snarling of an individual.

BLEEDING BREAD.

Considerable Dismay Caused in English Kitchens.

Considerable dismay was caused in England during the recent hot weather by the appearance of blood stains in bread, and also in boiled potatoes, rice and other farinaceous substances. In superstitious times, this somewhat rare phenomenon was regarded as a microscopic plant, which is known to some—according to Dr. M. C. Cooke—Micrococcus prodigiosus and to others as Bacillus prodigiosus. The true explanation of the terrifying blots was first pointed out by a Paduan naturalist in 1819. The same production was seen near Berlin by Ehrenberg in 1848, at Rouen by Dr. Camille Montaigne in the same year, and was first recorded in Britain in 1853. About 1886 an epidemic visitation on the Continent was attributed to this source. Carmine red patches, capable of staining the fingers, appeared on cooked meat during the night, and various articles of food were similarly affected until after three months, the epidemic suddenly ceased on the advent of a lower temperature. Fresenius found the individual organisms to be round or oval cells not more than 1-2000 to 1-4000 of a line in diameter. They develop only in the dark, and when kept continually at a temperature of 100 degrees their color is gradually lost.

WELDEN VS. WELDEN.

Judge Cheney Derides the Case.

The case of Welden vs. Welden was disposed of yesterday morning by the District Court. Judge Cheney read a clear and comprehensive opinion in the case reviewing the law and the evidence bearing upon the questions decided.

The Court holds among other matters that the right of homestead acquired by the wife may not be defeated by the husband going away from home and taking his family with him in search of a new home.

That the wife may give notice and declare a homestead on property subject to a declaration of homestead by her; that the husband may not set aside on the ground of abandonment till a new home subject to homestead rights is acquired by him for his family.

The declaration of homestead made by Mrs. Welden upon the community property will remain as made, and is removed from the property which the Court holds is the separate property of Welden, which separate property belonging to Welden has been increased in value $2,000 by Welden and his wife since their marriage. The case was brought by A. J. Welden against his wife to set aside a declaration of homestead made by her last April upon their ranch south of Reno. J. L. Wines appeared for Welden and W. Webster and T. V. Julien appeared for Mrs. Welden.

Richard Is Himself Again.

Richard Foote at the Opera House

last evening presented "Hugo the Hunchback" to an appreciative audience. Foote is an actor possessed of merit. In the heavy parts of a play that show the depth and breadth of the actor where so many fail in voice, manner or character he never fails to rise to the occasion in manner and character. His fine voice, from cold contracted since he came over the mountains, was a little harsh in the heavy parts. His Hunchback was a master piece of acting and is deserving of high encomiums. Come again Richard; we like your work.

He Could Have Her.

They were dining off a fowl at Godfrey's.

"You see," he explained, as he showed her the wishbone, "you take hold here. Then we must both make a wish and pull, and when it breaks the one having the larger part of the bone will have their wish gratified."

"But what shall I wish for?"

"Oh, you can think of something."

"No, I can't," she replied. "I don't know of anything I want very much."

"Well, I'll wish for you," he exclaimed.

"Will you really?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Well, then, George, there's no use fooling with the old wishbone," she interrupted with a happy smile, "you can have me."
